

The Duck, The Wolf and Geese

Once upon a time there was a duck, a wolf and a gang of geese. The gang call themselves gangster Geese. On Thursday, Wolfy met a duck called Daisy. Daisy and Wolfy became friends and Wolfy got called home so they said good bye and started walking home.

On the way, some geese met Wolfy in the street and they introduced themselves as the Graffiti Group (even though they are the Gangster Geese). Wolfy wanted to join the group because he likes painting and doing graffiti. But he didn't know they were tricking him so they said, "do one thing then you can join the group!"

"What do you want me to do?" asked Wolfy.

"We want you to go to the Tesco over there and steal a pack of pineapple coated corn," exclaimed the geese.

Wolfy tried his hardest to convince them to make him do anything else but they said no. So Wolfy went to Tesco and stole the pineapple coated corn. He ran to a nearby alleyway and met one of the geese and handed over the goods, then they let him in their gang.

Later that day, Daisy said, "come on let's play tag." Little did the pair know that the geese had set a trap. Wolfy was up, he ran to tag Daisy and fell in the trap. He got stuck in a net, Daisy ran off scared. The geese came too and Wolfy was shocked. They tried to make him steal from Daisy, he refused so they hit him with a crowbar and he blacked out.

He woke up in a warehouse. The geese told him that if he didn't steal from Daisy they would kidnap him again. He agreed. He left but what the geese didn't know was that Wolfy secretly went to the police station. The police were told where the geese were hiding and they were arrested.

The moral of this story is if you get blackmailed into something, tell someone that can help you so you don't have to be part of it anymore.
